SIGNIFICANCE

Significant because of its exceptional architectural features, its interpretation of the Classical Revival style, its age and association with local historical personages. Built 1917-18 (although oral history would date it c. 1910), the house was owned until the 1960s by the family of John C. Westbrook, a rancher who married the daughter of San Angelo pioneer and businessman John Findlater. Located in fashionable, upper-middle-class Park Heights Addition.
