STYLE: Eclectic/Modern Gothic

DESCRIPTION

Well-detailed quarry-faced, ashlar stone church with cruciform plan and stepped corner tower near a narrow narthex flanked by buttresses. The steeply pitched roof has flat tile roof material and parapeted stone gables, each topped by a cross. The Gothic arched entry is cast stone with a stained glass rose window above. The lancet windows in the nave, tower, and gable ends are all finely crafted and stained glass. In the late 1950, a sympathetic education wing was built featuring stone walls, gable roof with gable parapet, a crenellated loggia with buttressed walls and Gothic arches. Later this was enlarged, again sympathetically, with a flat-roofed structure terminated by a short corner tower.

SIGNIFICANCE

The Episcopal Church first established a congregation in San Angelo in 1885-87 and in 1929 built this building for $49,500 designed by architect John G. Becker. Becker's design was chosen over one submitted by El Paso architect Henry Trost, whose proposal drawings exist in El Paso. This structure used stone salvaged from the 1885 Tom Green County courthouse demolished in 1927. The courthouse bell was donated to the church as well. This church is an exceptional eclectic example and has retained its integrity. Because of the sympathetic nature of the additions, the entire complex is nominated.
